AERIE DEDICATION

Raymond Pellegrini, we dedicate the 1981 Aerie to you.

How can we ever thank you for all you have done for our class? Maybe this is but a small payment.

With your gentle firmness you have helped us through many a difficult time. With the prom last year, you worked as hard as anyone else to make it the success it was. You have united us when we were diverging. You have taken an honest interest in our welfare that is heartening to experience. You have helped us become a caring and unified one, helping us toward that final and touching moment when we are, all too soon, thrust into the world of adults.

Our gratitude is yours. We love you, Mr. P!

Mr. Connolly Addresses The Seniors

I offer my thanks and appreciation to a fine group of young people- The Class of 1981. You have demonstrated a willingness and a maturity to accept responsibility for both your successes and your failures. Most people find it easy to deal with success-victory- but very few find it easy to accept failure-defeat. You have been winners, not only in victory, but equally, in defeat.

I congratulate you on your diploma achievements, and equally important, for the example that you have provided younger students. I hope you will continue to provide a positive model as you begin your roles in the adult community.

Life is very precious, with each day providing a new start. Make each day worth living - be satisfied with yourself and your achievements.

Superintendent & Staff

Congratulations to the class of 1981. You move forth into society to work, to further schooling at particularly troubled times. There are problems with economy, unemployment, world strife and injustice among the citizenry-all of which seem insolvable to even the most agile brains in the country.

George Bernard Shaw, the late caustic, eccentric British author, described America as "the only society in history to go directly from barbarism to decadence, completely by-passing civilization." I personally find this assessment abhorrent in light of the accomplishments of our nation. Our nation has one of the highest living standards in the world. We have been most generous in giving food, health care, money, and the blood of our youth in causes for others over the last seventy years. Our citizens have invented many of the world's most marvelous machines, have won more nobel prizes than citizens of any other nation, have created philanthropic institutions for the good of the world, and have explored the frontiers of space.

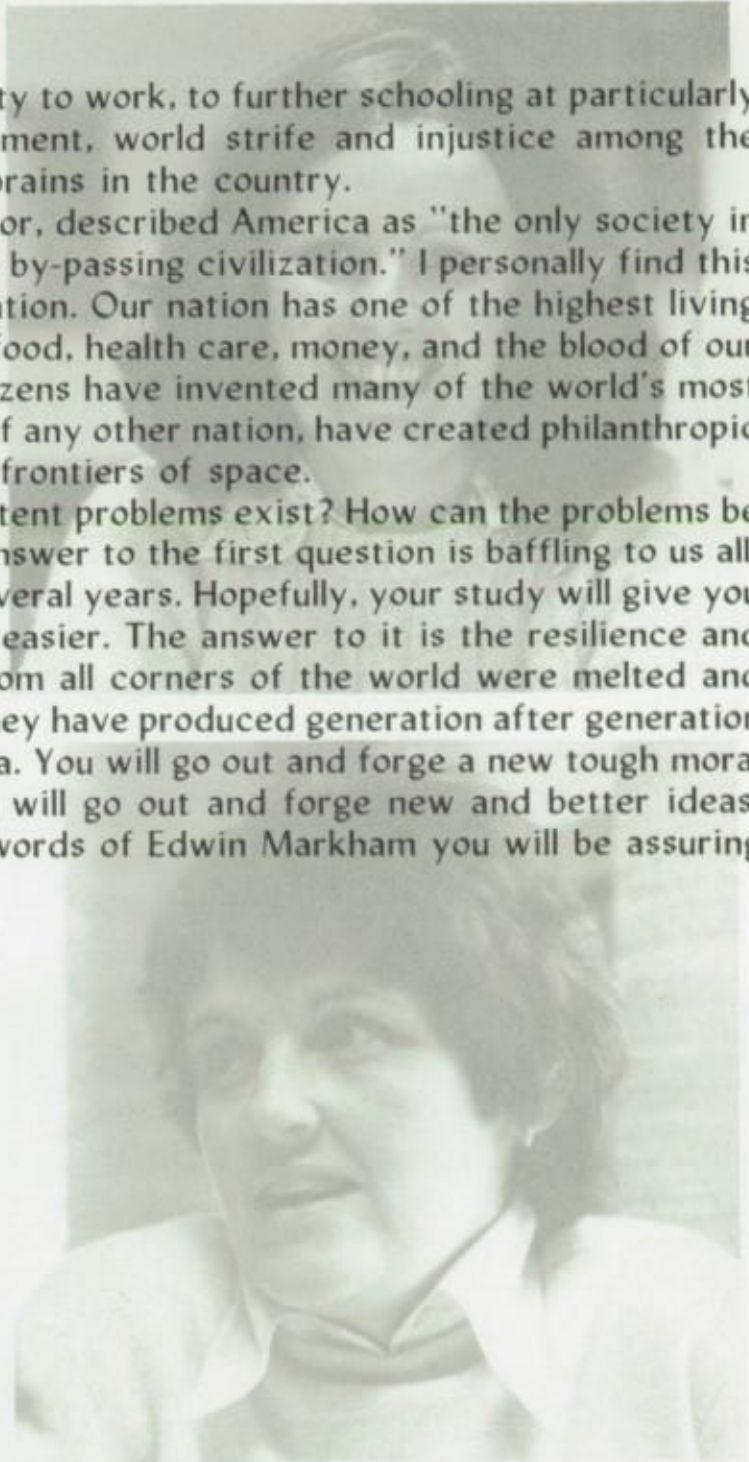

How can this paradox of great achievements and these persistent problems exist? How can the problems be solved and geater achievements be gained in the future? The answer to the first question is baffling to us all. There are many causes, which you have studied over the last several years. Hopefully, your study will give you insight to solutions. Approaching the second question is much easier. The answer to it is the resilience and fathomless spirit of the American people. People who came from all corners of the world were melted and molded into a mighty nation dedicated to individual liberties. They have produced generation after generation of youth. You and all who follow you are the strength of America. You will go out and forge a new tough moral fiber; you will go out and forge new answer to problems; you will go out and forge new and better ideas. Wherever you find yourself in the future, if you follow these words of Edwin Markham you will be assuring America a bright place in the world.

"Prepare your everyday
and treat each in the same way
If you are the anvil, bear
If you are the hammer, strike"

Markham

Good luck in whatever you choose to do.

J. Choiniere

The J.V. Soccer season was a very successful and enjoyable season. Sporting a 6-0 through the start of the season, we were hit by the "Varsity Bug" and played with limited numbers the remainder of the season, but we still logged a credible 10-2-2 which is a tribute to the team. We will lose several sophomores who will definately help the varsity.

But I am encuraged by the good attitudes of the freshman for next year.

GIRLS VARSITY

This was a year of changes for the Mt. Abraham Varsity hockey team. With only four seniors, the Eagles were the youngest Varsity squad in terms of age and experience in Mt. Abe's hockey history. The younger members had to adapt to a new system; the older ones, to new roles of leadership. Due to the influx of girls' soccer throughout the state, there were also changes in competition as traditional rivals dropped hockey, causing Mt. Abe to play four new "L" schools.

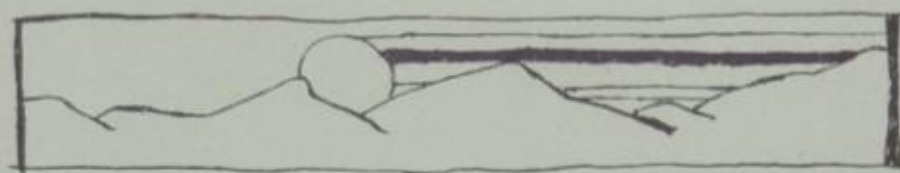

With a 5-6-1 record, the Eagles failed to qualify for play-offs for the first time in seven years. Their record, however, is not indicative of the caliber of the players. Despite their experience, they are a highly skilled group, one which improved steadily throughout the season, although they did not always coordinate their efforts and score.

Other teams recognized the quality of the Eagles, and the League coaches named seniors Patty Bird and Wendy Danyow to the League All-Star team, while Junior Melodie Hoff received Honorable Mention recognition. While the seniors provided excellent leadership on and off the field, with so many players returning to Varsity next year, the Eagles should be one of the strongest teams in the League.

Coaches Comments

Our season has been one of ups and downs. We have played some excellent games and have worked together as a team. On other occasions we have made fundamental mistakes. Some players had to be placed in positions they had not played before. In general, though, the team has responded well in the second half of the season and has improved greatly on offense and defense.

Harald Kirschner

Lincoln

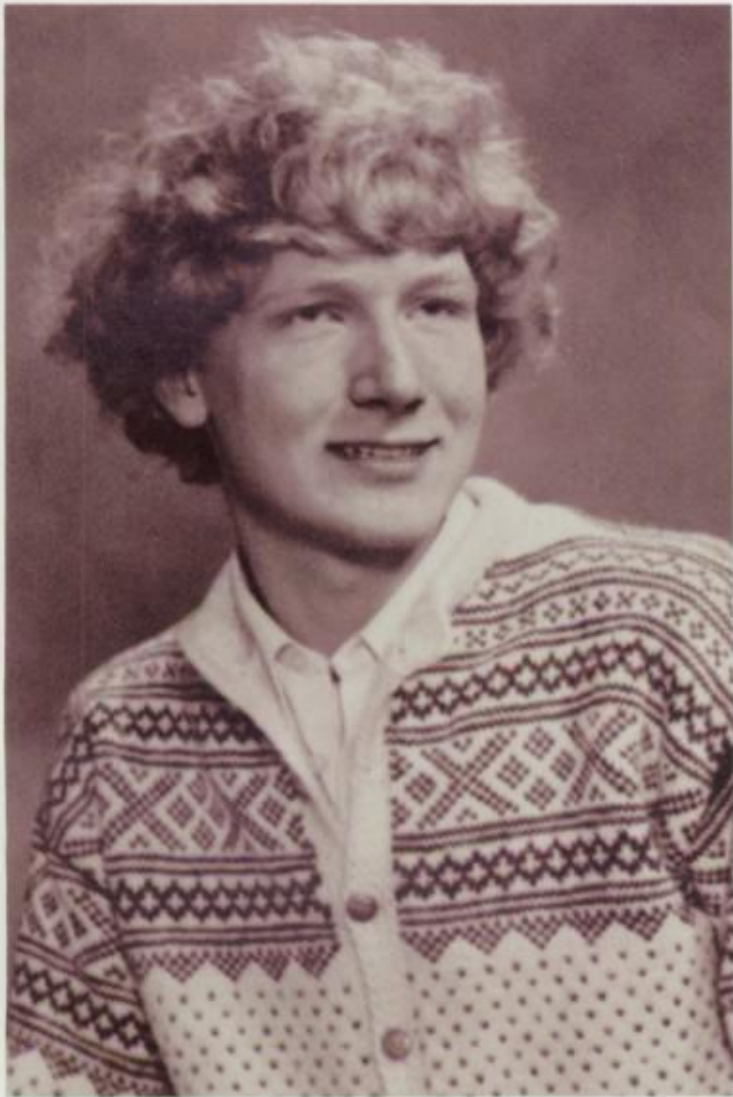

College Prep

School Vice-President 1,2; Chess Club 4;
Class President 1,2; Yearbook Staff 4; Mt.
Echo Staff 2; AFS 2,4; Student Senate 1,2;
Swim Team 4;

Harald delighted many Vermonters with his witty sense of humor, friendly personality, and willingness to get involved. He stayed with the Solomons in Lincoln, braving the cold isolation of Vermont mountains. Harald was an avid member of the swim team, ending one practice with a broken nose. We will always remember you, Harald Kirschner of Germany.

Hokon Stenmark

Lincoln

College Prep

"It is for us to make the effort. The result is in Gods hands."

AFS 3,4; Soccer 1,2,3,4; Volleyball 3;

Hokon stayed with the Strickholms in Lincoln and throughout the soccer season could be seen riding the ricketiest of bicycles up the steepest of hills. Known throughout the community for his dedication and friendliness, we wish you the best of luck, Hokon.

Editor's Comments

My friends, what is a yearbook?

Ah, yes indeed, a mighty question. And one that is only answerable by a mighty few. Is it the mere slapping together of pictures and words? Tsk, a piteous shibboleth. Nay, it is the incredible cohilation of time and effort by the few dedicated and faithful that have made such a creative chef-d'oeuvre such as this possible. Snicker, Ignorant Ones. Little do you know of the long dark hours of toiling away in a windowless chamber, and of the battles against the enemy Sleep to meet the ever encroaching Deadline.

There were times in our delirium when we would have succumbed to our weaknesses and forgotten our duty, had it not been for our brave leaders and advisors, Mrs. Lutton and Mr. Thelan. We are indebted to them, yet their job was merely to mold the raw talent of the staff. Who have we to thank more than our noble typists Judy Freyer, Nanci Lathrop, Wendy Danyow, Sheila English, and above all the copy editor and literary artist Andrew Smith. But are they not of the same import as those masters of beauty, our most excellent artists Gwen Zwickle and Sara Farr?

Indeed, though, what would the book be without such fine craftsmen of layout as we had this year, Amy Kenner, Joan Milazzo, Karen Wisell, Kim Perez, Becky Peabody, and John Gordon. In our haste to praise, let us not be forgetful of our money raisers and purse-keepers, Heather Purinton, Cristy Compagne, and Anne Cassidy. In addition, we have to thank and let this not be thought of as a least for cause of its position, our most faithful and courageous photographer, Malcom Snelgrove.

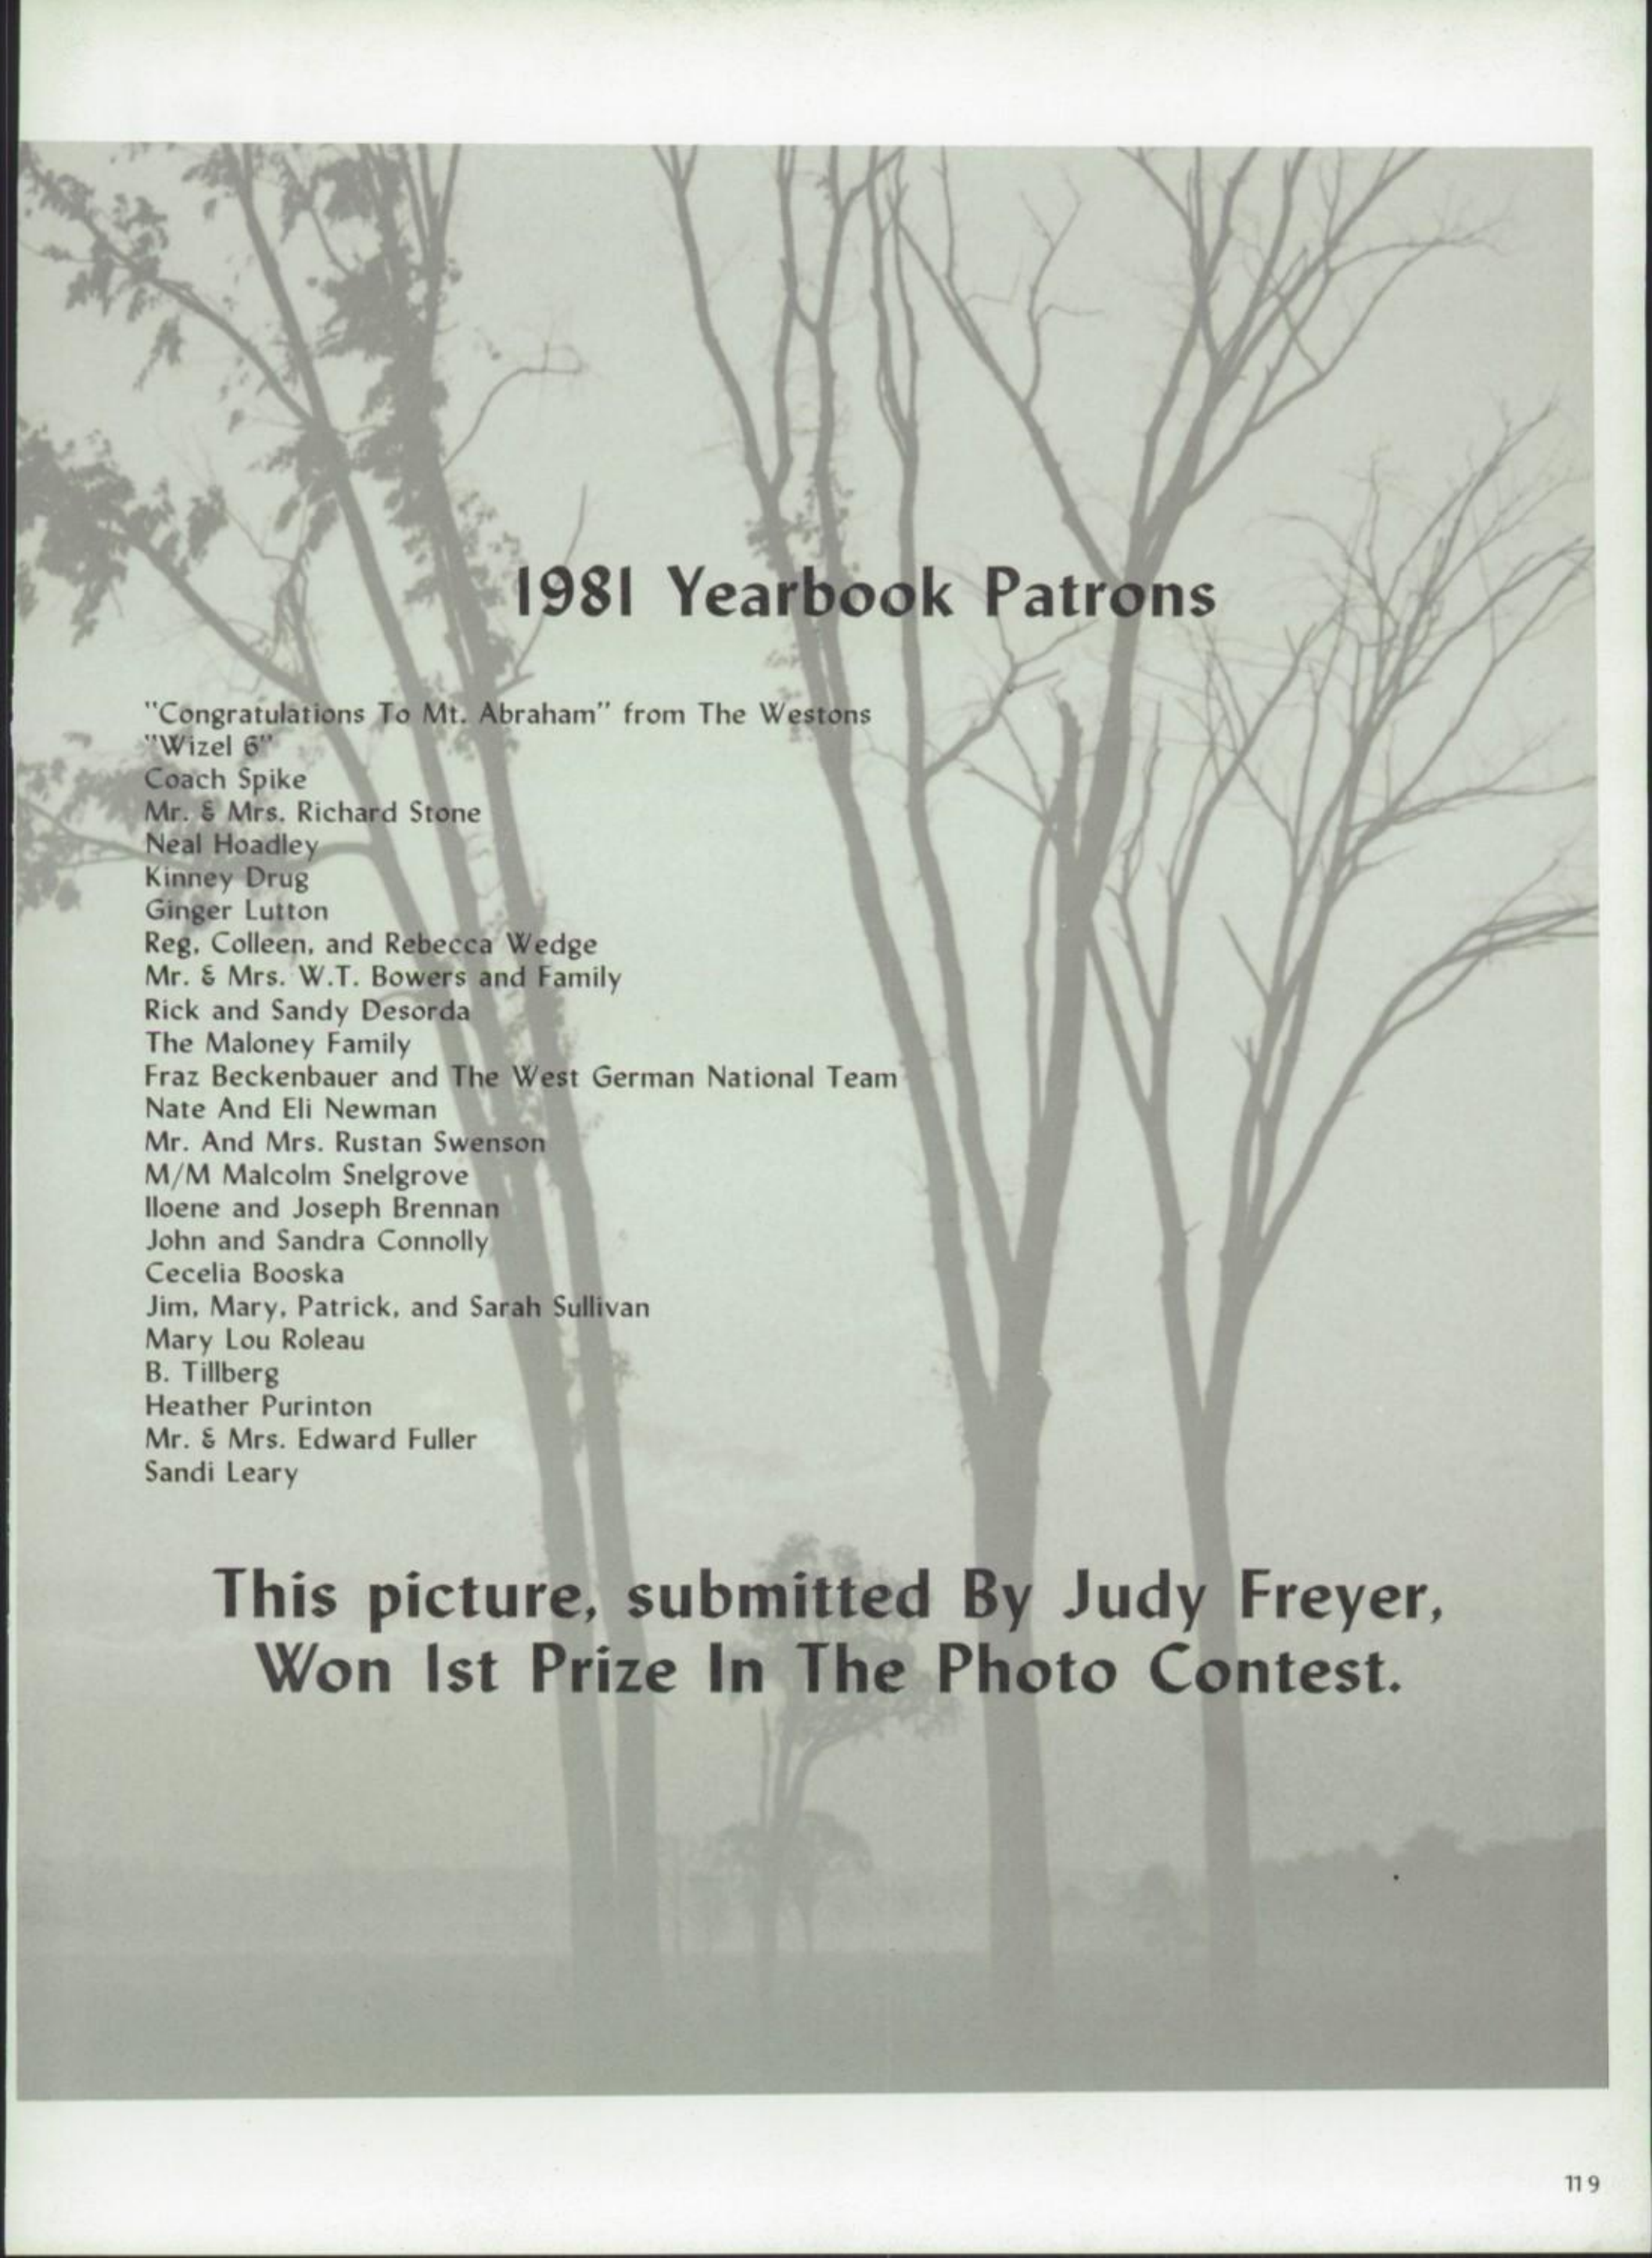

We give our gratitude also to some outside help without whose assistance such an endeavor such as this would have been absurd. We bow to you Mrs. Mayer, and Mrs. Benway, Mrs. Provost, Ms. Bushy, Mr. Connolly, and most profoundly Mr. Whalen, whose phone use and tactful speaking to our contrctors have proved invaluable.

To continue this esteemed tradition, we have the most honorable Amy Kenner and Gwen Zwickle as next year's co-editors. Our sincere felicitations to you both; may your year be filled with many great happenings worthy of preserving!

I leave with hopes that next year's Aerie will run as smoothly and provide as much satisfaction and enjoyment as it has for me. Thank you all and good luck!

Julie Kenner V
